The Liquor Selling Trouble

At Monday night's meeting of the Council the matter of selling liquor after hours in one of the hotels was taken up as there had been several complaints made in this regard, and the Council passed a resolution, as will be seen in the report of the Council proceedings, calling the License Inspector's attention to the state of affairs which is said to exist at this hotel.

There is no question but that there is a good deal of truth in the complaints, but it is always hard to get proof that this is being done as people will not, as a general thing, appear against the delinquent or report what they see, which makes it so much harder for the guilt to be brought home. However, those in authority are determined to put a stop if possible to illegal selling of liquor after hours and on Sunday, and if any person is caught in the bar rooms at such times, no matter who, they will be punished to the full extent of the law as well as the keeper of the house.

We think this a step in the right direction. If those people who only realize that they are subject to the law the same as the hotel keeper a lot of this trouble would disappear as they would not frequent the hotels after hours if they were punished once or twice.

There is another side to this question. The town is paying $300 a year for a constable. It has been proposed that the hotel licenses should be increased to cover the expenditure as they are responsible for most if not all of the trouble that a constable is needed for and if the present trouble continues some of the Councilors are in favor of putting the license up to the limit.

It has always been a mystery to us that a young lady should make some poor fellow believe that she is interested in his welfare when as a matter of fact she is interested only in his farewell.

Three Hills Townsites

To the Editor, Pioneer.

Sir: Please give me the privilege of the use of your columns to enlighten the general public on the condition of affairs regarding the Three Hills townsite, one of which is being exploited to the detriment of said public. Lots are being sold at the creek as being the townsite for Three Hills and several have been sold with this understanding. Now it is a well known fact amongst the local residents that the railroad will not run within two and a half miles of this townsite and consequently those who buy lots there and do not know the conditions will find that they are not anywhere near the G. T. P. when it goes through, and as for any other railroad it will be some years yet, if ever there is one, before it will reach the townsite by the creek. The company which is exploiting this townsite surely know these conditions as well as any person, and are misleading the public to use as harsher term. Most of the buildings that have been erected this spring are built on skids ready to move at a moment's notice and quite a few of the older buildings have been made ready to move, which shows that those on the spot know the conditions existing. The railroad so far has made no announcement as to where their townsite will be and until this is known it is the height of folly for any person to invest in any lots in a proposed townsite.

Hoping, Mr. Editor, that this warning will be heeded

Yours, etc.,

R. W. TUNNELL.

No "Flying Start" required with this Mower

If your mower isn't a Frost & Wood, very likely you have to back it up several feet and get a "flying start" before the knives will cut. That is because it is made on the External Gear principle.

Now, with the Frost & Wood No. 8 Mower, the knives commence cutting the instant the horses begin to move. That is because the No. 8 is designed on the Internal Gear principle.

Frost & Wood No. 8 Mower

We could tell you here the difference between External Gear Mowers and Internal Gear Mowers, but it would require a lot of space, and we can explain the difference more readily if you'll drop in and see us. We also want to show you the Large Bearings used in the Flywheel Connection between Cutter Bar and Main Power Frame, as well as the Double Brace used to protect the working parts from jolts and jolts—and several other features exclusive to the Frost & Wood No. 8 Mower. Call and see us at your earliest convenience.

Two Children Badly Hurt by Explosion

Two children playing with matches and gunpowder caused quite a commotion on Tuesday afternoon just before 6 o'clock in the north part of town. Mrs. Homister had left the children, a girl about eight years and a little boy between two and three years old, at home while she went to visit a neighbor, and while she was away the girl procured a bottle of gunpowder that was in the house and some matches, and putting some of the powder on the stove-stove fire to it but neglected to remove the bottle with the consequence that the whole thing exploded, setting fire to the little girl's clothing and cutting a bad gash in the baby's face by a piece of glass. Both children were also badly burned by the powder. Dr. Weart was called and was quickly on the scene of the accident and did all possible to relieve the little sufferers who will eventually recover.

CHAPTER X.

THE SCOUR OF TRANQUILITY.

THREE months stole by with tantalizing slowness. The autumn passed on into winter without a change of expression in the beauteous face of nature. Christmas day was as hot as if it had come in mid-summer; the natives were as naked, the trees as fully clad. The six months were passing away in spite of themselves. Ten weeks were left before the worn but determined herd could cast off their bonds and rush away to richer climes. It mattered little whether they went away or not. They were to go! Go! That was the richest thing the future held out to them. True, they were to beayed and sewn and compelled without restraint, but beneath all of their abandom there lurked the ever present paths of the fall, the autumn, the detour, the way.

Not until the end of January was there a sign of revolt against the ever growing, insidious condition of melancholy. As they turned into the last third of their exile they began to rejoice in the thought that release was coming nearer and nearer. The end of March—eight weeks off! Soon there would be but seven weeks, then six!

And all this time the islanders toiled as they had toiled for years. They reckoned in years, while the strangers counted in weeks, and called them years. Each day the brown men lived in the mines plugging gone into the vaults with a resolute-ness that never faltered.

From London came disquieting news for all sides to the controversy. The struggle promised to be greatly out for years, perhaps. The lonely legation marooned in the far south sea, began to realize that even after they had spent their six months of probation they would still have months, even years, of waiting before they could touch the fortune they laid claim to. The islanders also were vaguely aware of the fact that everything might be tied up for years despite the provisions of the law. A restless, stubborn feeling of alienation spread among them. This feeling gradually developed itself into bitter resentment. Hatred for the people who were causing this delay was growing deeper and deeper.

Their counselor, the complacent enemy, held himself aloof from the men and women that his charges were harassing. He met them and talked with them often, but nothing passed between them that had been regarded as the slightest breach of trust. He lived like a rajah in his own house, low, surrounded by the luxuries of one to whom all things are brought invisible. If he had any longing for the society of women, he sought it in kind, he carefully concealed it. His indifference to the subtle though unmistakable appeals of the two gentle women in the crowd was irritating in the extreme. When he deliberately, though politely, declined their invitation to tea one afternoon their humiliation knew no bounds.

Lady Deppingham and Mrs. Browne should not be misunderstood by the reader. They loved their husbands— I am quite sure of that—but they were tired of seeing no one else, tired of talking to no one else. Moreover, in support of this one-sided assertion, they experienced from time to time the most melancholy attacks of jealousy. If Mrs. Browne in plain despair went off for a day's ride with Lord Deppingham, the other woman, who was sick with jealousy, if Lady Agnes strolled in the moonlit gardens with Mr. Browne, the former Miss Bate of Boston, would be sure to find her emotions. They shed many tears of anguish over the faithlessness of husbands, tears of hatred over the viciousness of conspirators, and their words were fierce, their upbraidings caustic, but in the end they cried and kissed and "made up."

They did not know, of course, that the wife of Britz, despite his own depression, was all the while accumulating the most astounding lot of evidence to show that a decided streak of insanity existed in the two heirs.

"If they could only be married in some way," was Britz's private lament to Saunders from time to time, "I would despair overcome confidence. I've got a ripping idea," Saunders said one day.

"Let's have it. You're always got 'em. Why not divide with me?"

"Can't do it just yet. I've been looking up a little matter. I'll spring it soon."

"How long have you been working on the idea?"

"Nearly four months," said Saunders, yawning.

"Did this climate is enervating?"

"Britz's, cause common."

Saunders was beaming over head in love with Miss Pelham at this time, so it was not surprising that he had some sort of account about marriage, no matter what it concerned.

Night after night the Deppinghams and Brownes gave dinners, balls, music-halls, bridges, masks and theater suppers at the chateau. First one would invite the other to a great ball, then the other would respond by giving a sumptuous dinner.

One morning during the first week in February the steamer from Adeu brought stacks of mail—the customary newspapers, magazines, telegrams and letters. It was noticed that her ladyship had several hundred letters, many bearing crests or coats of arms.

At last she came to a letter of many pages covered with a scrawl that looked preposterously fashionable. Lady Agnes gave a sudden shriek and, looking to her feet, performed a dance that set her husband and Bobby Browne to gasping.

"She's coming!" she cried ecstatically, repeating herself a dozen times. "Who's coming, Agnes?" roared her husband for the sixth time.

"The princess! Deppy's in going to squeeze you! I must squeeze somebody! Isn't it glorious! Now—now—now life will be worth living in this beautiful place."

Her dearest friend, the princess, had written to say that she was coming to spend a month with her.

"Is her uncle's name Deppy—the big one that came to Cowes last year, don't you know? Of course you do. Don't look so dazed. It's coming for a couple of months and is to set her down here until the yacht returns from the Philippines. She says she hopes it will be quiet here. Quite! She hopes it will be quiet."

"Is her uncle's name Deppy—the big one that came to Cowes last year, don't you know? Of course you do. Don't look so dazed. It's coming for a couple of months and is to set her down here until the yacht returns from the Philippines. She says she hopes it will be quiet here. Quite! She hopes it will be quiet."

"Hang it all, Browne, I'm afraid to pluck a violet these days. Every time I stoop over I feel that somebody's going to take a shot at me!"

"Why the legions select me to shoot at? They're not always popping away at you, Browne. Why is it?"

"It's all right so long as they don't kill you," was Browne's consoling remark.

"By Jove!" said Deppingham, starting up with a look of horror in his eyes, sudden comprehension rushing down upon him. "I wonder if they think I am you, Browne! Horrible!"

The enemy's office hours were from 3 to 5 in the afternoon. Twice a week Miss Pelham came down from the chateau in a gayly bedecked kilt to sit opposite to him in his stuffy corner of the banking house, his desk between them, her notebook scribbling with propinquity. Mr. Browne generously lent the port lady the enemy in exchange for what he designated as "happy days."

Miss Pelham made it a point to look as fascinating as possible on the occasion of these interesting trips into the enemy's territory.

The enemy, doing his duty by his clients with a determination that seemed unbreakable, was the last to realize that an intrigue was shaping itself to combat his endeavors. Von Blitz, openly his friend and ally, secretly and his enemy, was the thorn which retarded the natives into a state of inaction and doubt as to their agent's sincerity.

They began to believe that no good could come out of the daily meetings of the three lawyers.

It was Von Blitz who took a leading part in the most successful of the three lawyers—the Persians the Christians, the Egyptians and the Turkish house—were in love with the tall stranger.

It was he who advised them to observe the actions, to study the moods of their women.

The German knew the condition of affairs in his own household. His admiration for their champion, Every eye in Japan was upon him; every hand was turning about him.

It was Miss Pelham who finally took it upon herself to vary the lonely American. The look of surprise and disgust that came into his face brought her up sharply.

"Miss Pelham," he said coldly, "will you be kind enough to carry my condolences to the ladies at court, and to tell them that I am sending them an antidote for the poison which ill-health produces. Neither my home nor my barroom is open to ladies. If you don't mind we can go on with the business."

Miss Pelham flushed and looked very uncomfortable.

"You're wrong about Lady Deppingham and Mrs. Browne," she began hurriedly. "They're never said anything mean about you. It was just my miserable way of putting it. The talk comes from the islanders. Mr. Browne has told Mr. Britz and Mr. Saunders. He thinks Von Blitz is working against you, and he is sure that all of the men are furiously jealous of the idea."

"Perhaps there is something in what you say. I'm grateful to you for preparing me. It had suddenly come to me that the night before I had seen a man skulking in the vicinity of the bungalow."

"I just thought I'd tell you," murmured Miss Pelham, "but I don't want to see you get into trouble—none of us."

"Thank you." After a long pause he went on, lowering his voice. "Miss Pelham, I have had a hard time here in more ways than I care to speak of. It may interest you to know that I had decided to leave last month, and go home. I'm a living man, and a living man objects to a living death. But I've changed my mind. I'll stick my time out. I've got three months more to stay, and I'll stay. If Von Blitz thinks he can drive me out, he's mistaken. I'll be here after you and your friends up there have sailed away."

Miss Pelham—God bless you, you're all white—and I'll be here when Von Blitz and his wives are dancing to the tunes of the play. I'll be back to work. If Von Blitz is working in the dark, I'll compel him to show his hand. And, Miss Pelham," he concluded very slowly, "I promise to use a club, if necessary, to drive the Persian ladies away. So please rest easy on my account."

FLOTSAM AND JETSAM.

Russian Suit For Small Boy—Flowers Lovell—Then Ever.

A new little nook in a Russian suit for a small boy is made of linen. The bloomers are full. The front of the blouse is in plastron effect from shoulders to hem and is trimmed down both edges with white pearl buttons. The blouse closes down the left front under a fly. There is a loose belt of the material. The collar is a straight band. The sleeves are full and plaited.

French flowers are lovely enough this season to tempt the most rigid economy to indulge in their purchase. Giant La France roses are conspicuously beautiful and realistic. Equally attractive are the Malmoe roses with delicate spray foliage, on which the natural bloom seems actually reproduced.

This little frock is charming for girls in their teens. The blouse is made without lining and consequently means

ABOUT SIR THOMAS.

How the Great Irish Yachtsman Made His Money.

Sir Thomas Johnston, Lipton, Bart., G.C.V.O., of Britain's most noted merchant prince, widely known as a practical philanthropist. But Sir Thomas is also a yachtsman and famous for his plucky attempts to win that much coveted of yachting trophies, the America Cup.

So far, success has not rewarded his ambitious and early endeavors in that direction, but the many admirers of Sir Thomas join with him in the hope that he may yet experience the joy of "lifting the cup" for which he has hitherto challenged in vain.

His victory would be indeed popular on both sides of the Atlantic. No man has displayed greater enterprise and ardor combined in the fascinating pursuit of yachtmanship, no truer sportsman ever trod deck or stood at the helm than the man who owned the Erin and the Shamrock and who belongs to most of the crack yacht clubs in his native isles, as well as to those of New York and America.

Interested in aviation and keen on motoring, the chief recreation of Sir Thomas Lipton's strenuous business life has been sailing under "white wings." For the sea and yachting he has a perfect taste.

But first he earned the right and the wherewithal to engage in this sport, and he has done so in a most profitable manner.

For Sir Thomas has been the architect of the great success of the "Huge Motors" which he now enjoys.

Born in Glasgow in 1856, of parents who were Scotchmen, he came to North of Ireland, with but little worldly gear, he quite early in life began to make his money.

Nothing in a "mean street" of the city of good St. Mungo.

From the first, he displayed a perfect genius for shopkeeping. His motto was to get the best of the goods he had to sell, and to force it under the eyes of buyers.

A born advertiser, the people were drawn to him by the goods cunningly displayed, in the beginning by his own hands, and later on by a splendid advertisement.

They became purchasers in steadily increasing numbers, and young Lipton prospered exceedingly.

His business, in course of time, expanded enormously, and then to supply the demand for his provision business, he began to import goods from the Continent.

Then he began to import goods from the Continent. He began to import goods from the Continent. He began to import goods from the Continent.

DAIRY BREEDS AND FEEDS.

Experiments at the Wisconsin station show what can be done by the dairymen when the cows are properly fed and cared for. The dairy herd at the station has been established about ten years. Complete records have been kept for the production of milk and butter fat, and almost every kind of experiment has been tested in feeding and management. The herd of thirty represents the leading breeds, including Jerseys, Holsteins, Ayrshires and Brown Swisses.

The Holstein cow Johanna last year as well as the preceding year ranked first in net profit yielded over and above the cost of her feed. She gave milk 337 days during the year and produced 13,162 pounds of milk and 477.96 pounds of butter fat, the average fat content of her milk for the year being 3.62 per cent.

The Jersey cow Maveia ranked second in net profit yielded during the past year, yielding credit for production of 7,762.1 pounds of milk and 4,234 pounds of fat (average fat content, 5.48 per cent); value of products, $225.94; cost of feed, $145.61; net profit, $80.33. This cow ranked third among the cows in the herd during the preceding year, with a production of 6,934 pounds of milk, 413.1 pounds of fat (average fat content, 5.96 per cent) and a net profit of $61.87.

The Guernsey cow Margaret and the Ayrshire cow Christina ranked fourth and fifth respectively, with net profits for the year as follows: Margaret, $72.88; Christina, $37.50. The production for the year ranging from 6,702.8 to 9,037.4 pounds of milk and from 366.58 to 413.54 pounds of butter fat.

The average feed eaten about the same for all three cows, ranging from $37.50 to $38.00.

Grain was fed in many different ways during the year, and one-fourth to one-third as much grain as the amount of milk given, according to the quality. The grain mixture was three parts wheat, four parts cornmeal, three parts distillers' grains.

Besides the grain, the cows had what was called "roughage," such as hay, clover, alfalfa, etc., and the ration for the year varying from twenty-five to forty-five pounds of ensilage and four to six pounds of hay. Each cow is carefully watched and the rations varied, according to need. In summer, besides pasturage, more or less grain is fed to nearly all the cows and some green corn when the pastures begin to dry up.

The station is in line with many dairy farmers when it concludes that cows which freshen in the fall and early winter are more profitable than those which freshen earlier or later.

Another tendency is to feed wider rations—that is, to feed a larger proportion of food containing starch and fat. This chance seems to be in line with much recent experiment station work and is a measure of practical economy, because most of the staple fodder crops of the farm favor a wide ration. The Wisconsin station has not yet reached into shape along this line, but asserts that feeding experiments show that rations made up mainly of farm grown feeds will, when fed to the right kind of cows, produce large, profitable yields.

Post Lameness in Horses.

A. S. Alexander, V. S., explores the old idea of "chest foundering" as a cause of "chest foundering." He says that such cases are those suffering from chronic founder laminitis, which affects the feet and not the chest and is not a case of chest foundering.

Such a horse should be shod with wide webbed, flat bar shoes, put on over a dressing of tar and oakum, and a thick leather sole. Then clip off the hair in and under the hoof beds (coronets) of four feet with a mixture of one dram of biniodine to one quart of kerosene and one quart of carbolic acid rubbed in for a week. Wash liberally in forty-eight hours, then apply larly. Blister every three or four weeks.

Three Hills

Wm. Scott unloaded a threshing outfit in Didsbury on the 17th. He will plow with his engine in the Three Hills country till threshing time.

Crops are looking very well for being so dry this year. A little more rain and there will be an average crop.

R. W. Tunnel received a new plow engine on the 18th. He will plow in company with his son-in-law, Mr. Fred Hankins, this summer in the Three Hills country. There are nine steam plowing outfits running in the vicinity of Three Hills this year. Look out for the good times when the G. T. P. gets ready to take out this wheat.

Mr. Henry Davis was a visitor to Didsbury on the 17th.

The siding at Three Hills will be on the N. W. 1/4 Sec. 7, T. 32, R. 23, the most beautiful spot for a town in the whole Three Hills district.

Rawdonville.

The weather continues dry and warm, rain is needed. Our lumber yard commences business this week, first quality B. C. will be handled.

The Grand Trunk survey party has been strengthened. The right of way is purchased, and a start will probably be made with the grading during the next few days.

Nothing definite is known regarding the location of the townsites or sidings.

Our annual sports and dance will be held on the 29th of June. Come out stranger and take a look at this country. The Grand Trunk intends running through.

Ghost Pine News

The steam plow is now busy and good work is reported; all parties being well satisfied.

It is reported that a new postoffice is started at Wm. O. McCutcheon's. This will be a blessing to quite a few.

The creamery is now in full swing and quite a number of young men say "Where are you going, my pretty maid?" "I'm going a milking, sir," she said.

The stallion Royal Oak, owned by Mr. Neil Stewart, is giving entire satisfaction to the community. He is a fine bred Clydesdale and is leaving a large percentage of live colts. He was imported into Canada in 1908 and was shown at the Calgary spring show in 1909.

George Dolson was out from Didsbury Wednesday and is well satisfied with his young stock.

Pete Clark lost a good horse on Tuesday. He must stay at home now and not wander so far afield. Hard lines, Pete. Your luck is sure to turn.

While attempting to get some tools out of a 30 foot well he had just dug, Duncan Johnson, a homesteader in the Hand Hills district, was asphyxiated by natural gas which exuded from the earth and had collected in the excavation. His body was discovered by one of the neighbors who went over to get a well rope.

We have residing in our town a young man who, it reports are true, is wonderfully and fearfully made. His doctor said he had an iron constitution; his friends said he had nerves of steel; his uncle that he had a wooden head; the girls said he had a heart of stone; his enemies declared that there was more brass to him than anything else; others declared he had lots of sand, while his admirers declared he was all wool and a yard wide.

It Costs $40.00 For Doctor's Visit

On Alberta's Prairies—DR. OHASE'S Medicine and Receipt Book Very Popular Out There.

The luxuries of city life are little known in the prairie homes of Western Canada. When sickness comes people find it necessary to depend on their own resources to a great extent on account of the difficulty and expense of a doctor's visit.

By reading the letter quoted here you will form some idea of how Dr. Ohase's Medicine and Receipt Book are appreciated in Alberta. This is not only due to the convenience of having these medicines on hand when occasion requires but is also owing to their wonderful reliability.

Where will you find such a restorative treatment as Dr. Ohase's Nerve Food, to enrich the blood, strengthen the nerves and build up the run-down system?

Mr. Geo. Clay, Oxville, Alberta, writes: "I have always been a great admirer of Dr. Ohase's Medicine and have had his large Receipt Book for over twenty years. His medicines and book have saved me many doctor bills and have proven wonderfully effective. It costs $40.00 for a doctor's visit to come out here, so it is rather expensive to get sick.

"I recommend Dr. Ohase's Nerve Food to a friend of mine for his wife. He studied the symptoms in Dr. Ohase's Almanac and found she needed Dr. Ohase's Nerve Food to restore her worn-out nervous system. I gave him some of this medicine until he could get to town when he got two boxes more and these cured her entirely.

"For myself, I used Dr. Ohase's Catarrh Powder with splendid results. For some time I was bad with catarrh and could not breathe through my nose. Now I go to bed and never wake all night and breathe all the time through the nose."

Dr. Ohase's Medicines are for sale by all dealers or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Changed His Mind

"You are charged with larceny. Are you guilty, or not guilty?" "Not guilty, judge. I thought I was, but I've been talking to my lawyer, and he's convinced me that I ain't." —Catholic News.

A Bean for the Billionaire.—The liver is a very sensitive organ and easily deranged. When this occurs there is undue secretion of bile and the bile flows into the stomach and causes it. It is a most distressing ailment, and many people suffer from this condition. A man finds the best remedy in Parmentier's Vegetable Pills, which are warranted to speedily correct the disorder. There is no better medicine in the entire list of pill prescriptions.

Geyer—"I dropped my watch in the river and didn't recover it for three days. It kept right on running, though."

Geyer—"A watch won't run for three days."

Geyer—"Of course not; I was speaking of the river."

Minard's Liniment used by Physicians

Preserving a Balance.—Weathering—How is it that your son has to study so much in summer? Featherly—"That's the only time he has to improve his mind. His college course is taken up with athletics."

SAVED IN HIS OLD AGE

Annapolis, N. S., May 14, 1909.—"I am over eighty years of age and have suffered from Kidney and Bladder trouble for fifteen years. I took doctors' medicine but got no help. I want to thank you for sending me the sample box of Gin Pills, which helped me."

"I have taken six boxes of Gin Pills altogether, but got relief before I had taken near that amount. I had to get up some nights every fifteen minutes and had to use an instrument before I could urinate. Now I can sleep in bed four or five hours without getting up."

Lawyer—Better just send him a large bill for storage—Life.

Do not forget that every ten cent packet of Wilson's Fly Pads has more flies than three hundred sheets of sticky paper.

Boarding Mistress—"Is there anything wrong with that egg, Mr. Fourper? I see you are according it a very critical examination."

Mr. Fourper—"Oh, not anything wrong with the egg, Mrs. Skimpin. It was just looking for the wabshoon, that's all."

Keep Minard's Liniment in the house.

First Little Girl—"Your papa and mamma are not real parents. They adopted you."

Second Little Girl—"Well, that makes it all the more satisfactory. My parents picked me out, and yours had to take you as you came."

Couldn't Stand It

When the old lady appeared at the big door of the life-saving station, the New York Tribune says, she regarded the rougher elements of the lay with frightened eyes.

"Isn't something being done for that ship in distress?" she anxiously demanded, pointing seaward.

"Oh, that's all right, ma'am," replied a man in oilskins. "We've sent on a line to come to shore."

"Goodness me!" exclaimed the lady. "Were they waiting for a formal invitation?"

Tattered Timothy—"I've been trapped four years, ma'am, an' it's all 'cause I heard that the doctors recommended 'walkin'' as the best exercise."

Mrs. Prim—"Well, the doctors are so sure they're wrong."

Attacks of cholera and dysentery come quickly, before they have time for warning of the visit. Remedial action must be taken just as quickly if the patient of the American Bank Note company and permanent injury to the lining membranes of the bowels. The result is a condition known as dysentery.

It can be got at small cost at any drug store or general dealer's, and it will afford relief before a doctor can be called.

Mother—"If you marry Robert I swear that I'll never set a foot in your family, and in the interests of the daughter."

Daughter—"Please put that down in writing. I'd like to give your promise to Robert as a wedding present."

House flies are hatched in manure and filth. As a result, they are responsible for the spread of tuberculosis, typhoid, cholera, dysentery, and infantile diseases of the bowels. For the welfare of your own family, and in the interests of the public health, you should therefore use Wilson's Fly Pads, the best of all fly killers, and keep your house free from these dangerous and disgusting pests.

Dick—"Do you like romantic girls, Harold?"

Harry—"I don't. When you make a hole in your salary paying them expensive flowers, they tear them apart, repeating, 'He loves me—he loves me not.'"

An Always Ready Pill.—To those of regular habit medicine is of little concern, but the great majority of men are of regular habit. The worry and care of business prevent it, and out of the irregularity of life comes dyspepsia, indigestion, liver and kidney troubles, and other ailments. The modern system demands a corrective, and there is no better than Parmentier's Vegetable Pills. They are simple in their composition and can be taken by the most delicately constituted.

Caller—"What do you keep chickens for? What need do you consider the best?"

Suburbanite—"It's hard to tell. I notice, though, that more of my white Waunderettes are stolen than any other kind."

A SAFE MEDICINE FOR ALL CHILDREN

The mothers whose little ones are ill not only wish for a medicine that will make their babies better but one that is so simple that any parent can give it. Such a medicine is Baby's Own Tablets. They are sold under the positive guarantee of a government analyst to contain no opiate, narcotic or other harmful drug. They always do good; they cannot possibly do harm—even to the new-born baby. Concerning them Mrs. J. E. Z. Marchand, Anne de la Perle, Que., writes: "I find Baby's Own Tablets indispensable. As soon as I find my children not feeling well I administer the Tablets and I am never disappointed in the result. They would not be without for me and an excellent cure for two more boxes." The Tablets are sold by medicine men, druggists, and by mail in a box from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Just the Same

The bride-to-be had the air of one who is unconcerned by the existing state of affairs. "Can't we take a wedding trip, as we'd planned?" she asked, plaintively.

"Not just now," said the young man, "on account of my partner's illness."

"I thought it would be such fun, taking that six days' railway journey," she sighed.

"Well, now, see here," said the young man. "If we take the flat I booked yesterday, it'll be just the same as living in a suburban cottage, except that the scenery won't change."

Wood fires are strongest near the centre of the limb or tree trunk.

Teacher—"What is the total population of the globe?"

Small Boy (promptly)—"One and one-half billions."

Little Girl (raising her hand)—"Please, ma'am, we had a baby brother in our house yesterday."

A BELIEF IN GHOSTS.

Finds Lodgment in Many Minds Despite Scientific Denials.

Are there such things as ghosts? The incredulity with which the question is often asked is paralleled by the passionate belief with which the affirmative answer is often stated. That there are apparitions is granted even by the most skeptical investigators. But whereas the impressionable seer of ghosts believes they are supernatural, the colder scientist says they are nothing but hallucinations. Frank Podmore, the English "ghost hunter" has much to say of the attendant circumstances in most ghost seeing, circumstances which do much to weaken the value of the testimony of the seer. Almost invariably there are mysterious noises, by which the witness is put in a state of nervous alarm. Then comes the vision, which often takes terrifying form. Is the ghost seen hovering something objective and external or is he merely contemplating an image created by his own imagination? Of the good faith of many people who say they have seen ghosts there can be no question, but Mr. Podmore shakes his head as to their credulity.

And yet when they have seen people who believe they are living people who have been attested to the utmost people will still believe. Science may discredit what it cannot prove, but the ages there is a cumulative mass of testimony which, though it does not amount to proof, yet commands shuddering respect. The sternest materialism can eliminate from people's minds that credence in the unknown and the undemonstrated which has been handed down to them from the beginnings of time.

Plato himself accepted the existence of ghosts, and he makes Socrates explain their frequenting of graveyards. These ghosts, says the great Athenian, are the spirits of the body in which they could gratify their desires. It is heathen, but memory tortures them, and they come to the dead for the fleshly abode in which they formerly dwelt. Shakespeare is full of allusions to the dwellers in the realm of shadows. But, too, knows the meaning of philosophy. He makes Hamlet ponder whether the image of his father or may not be some coinage of his fancy. He hesitates between contrary opinions, but inclines toward belief in the supernatural. He says to his friends, "There are more things in heaven and earth, Horatio."

That is the main part of his philosophy. From Shakespeare's day to now we have advanced in one particular. We have learned the composition of the brain and the susceptibilities of nervous tissue. We are assured today that a man may be so affected that he sees a ghost and yet see nothing but the projection of an image within his mind. The modern Reason learned by us as we may, cannot eradicate from our mind that vague feeling, half horror, half awe, that ghosts may be. Sir Thomas Browne touches on this matter with characteristic quaintness. He says, "I am sure, I hope to see a ghost that they may be persuaded of the immortality of the soul. But he who says that the devil will never let them see one, for that would be to turn them away from himself."

Lost Votes.

A Parliamentary candidate lost quite a number of votes by making a gratuitous promise to his own wife. He promised his better half that if he were successful at the poll he would buy her a new skin coat and hat to match. His wife was so pleased with this kindly offer that she at once sent him a note to that effect. "I am about it. Every lady to whom this piece of news was imparted, of course, said her husband's wife at once. "How very nice, dear," but equally, of course, immediately went off home to her husband and said: "Take care you don't vote for Mr. A., dear. Fancy that stuck up Mr. A. in a new skin coat while my old one is so shabby!"—London Express.

Natural Soap.

Natural soap is not heard of every day; yet it not only exists but is highly prized by Jack Tar in tropic regions when the purser reports that the ship's supply of soap has given out. Then all hands are sent ashore to gather the eggs of "natural soap," which is found on the shore in the shape of white eggs. The eggs are found in a light-yellowish mass which is composed of some five or six hundred capsules. One fish alone produces millions of these eggs in the course of the year. They are found on the shores of the Atlantic, but are very profuse on the intertropical reefs, where sailors take large quantities aboard for use as soap.

A Mean Advantage.

A gentleman wished to make his wife a present of a lace scarf, but had no desire to pay an extravagant price. "I want you to buy a new lace scarf for Cousin Amelia," he said to his spouse. "Choose something nice—something you would get for yourself."

The wife, however, had her own ideas as to generosity in buying presents, and the purchase when she made it cost her a very simple article.

"I'll," said the husband, "is that what you would have chosen for yourself?"

"Exactly," she replied.

"Well, my dear, keep it. I meant it for you," he explained, with an amiable smile.

RHEUMATISM

suffered Tortures Until "Fruit-active" Took Away The Pain.

"Fruit-active," the famous fruit medicine, is the greatest and most scientific remedy ever discovered for Rheumatism.

"Fruit-active," by its marvellous action on the bowels, kidneys and skin, prevents the accumulation of Uric Acid, which causes Rheumatism and thereby keeps the blood pure and rich.

Mrs. Walter Hooper, of Hillview, Ont., says: "I suffered from severe Rheumatism, lost the use of my right arm and could not do my work. Nothing helped me until I took 'Fruit-active' and this medicine cured me."

If you are subject to Rheumatism, don't wait until a severe attack comes on before trying "Fruit-active." Take these Fruit-active pills now and thus prevent the attacks.

"Fruit-active" is sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 4 for $2.00, or trial box, 25c, or may be obtained from Fruit-active, Limited, Ottawa.

KIDNEYS WRONG?

If they are you are in danger. When through weakness or disease the kidneys fail to filter the impurities from the blood, trouble comes at once. Backache, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Gravel, Diabetes, Gout, Stomach and Bowel Bright's Disease are some of the results of neglected kidneys. Dr. Morse's Kidney Pills contain a most effective diuretic which strengthens and stimulates the kidneys, and thus cleanses their work thoroughly and well. Try them.

The regular meeting of the Council was held on Monday evening in the Council chambers. Mayor Atkins, Councillor Hunsberger, St. Clair, Reed, Osmond, Moyer, Secretary Good and Solicitor Patterson being present.

Several bills and accounts for work were presented and as they were O.K'd by the different chairmen of committees were passed by the Council.

A request was received by the Council for the opening of the railway crossing between the Flour Mill and Creamery.

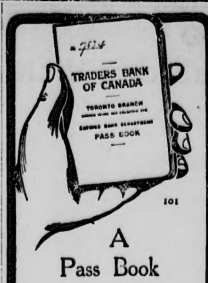

The matter was left in the hands of the Solicitor to take up with the C. P. R.

As several complaints had been made to the Council in regard to the conduct of the Alexandria Hotel that they were selling liquor after hours the following resolution was passed by the Council:

"That as several complaints have been made that the Alexandria Hotel is selling liquor after hours be it resolved that this Council ask the License Inspector to take up the matter." Carried unanimously.

Constable Iny stated that he had warned the proprietor at the hotel several times but he did not seem to pay much attention to the warnings.

Mr. J. L. Beane addressed the Council in regard to the condition in which his property was left after repairs had been made to the big opposite to his property. Mr. Beane asked for a crossing and lumber for a small piece of sidewalk and he would lay the same. The matter was left in the hands of the Public Works Committee. Tenderers are to be called for laying sidewalk in the near future.

It's easy to grow plants in a Sunshine-heated home

Pure Warm Sunshine Air

PEOPLE living in homes heated with ordinary furnaces often claim they cannot grow plants with any degree of success. This is due to the fact that ordinary furnaces are not provided with an Automatic Gas Damper. There is nothing to prevent coal-gas, which is deadly to plant life, being forced up through the registers.

Now, when the gas in the combustion chamber of the Sunshine reaches a certain pressure it automatically opens the Automatic Gas Damper and purges the chimney, consequently there is no chance for it to seep through the registers. Instead, the gas that passes through the registers is pure, warm, Sunshine air, laden with the precise degree of moisture from the water-pans. It's the kind of air that makes plants thrive and is good to breathe into your own lungs.

If you want to guard your home (and who doesn't?) against cold-smelling, deadly coal gas order our agent to install the Sunshine furnace (guaranteed) in your cellar.
